GENERAL RELEVANT INFORMATION

Article 5.1.f of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) determines the need to establish appropriate security safeguards against unauthorized or unlawful processing, against accidental loss, destruction or damage. This implies the establishment of technical and organisational measures aimed at ensuring the integrity and confidentiality of personal data and the possibility (Article 5.2) to demonstrate that these measures have been implemented (accountability).

We use suitable technologies and procedures to protect the data from accidental loss as well as unauthorized access, use, destruction or publication. We do not share data with any other organization. Nor do we send your information outside the European Union. We make backup copies to be able to recover the information in case of any incident. We also implement suitable physical and technological measures to store and transfer your data securely.

RIGHTS OF THE DATA SUBJECTS

For the right of access, the data subject will be provided with a list of the available personal data, together with the purpose at the time they were collected, the identity of the recipients of the data, the storage period, and the identity of the controller to exercise the rights of rectification, erasure and to object.

To exercise the right of rectification it will be required to modify the data of the data subject that were inaccurate or incomplete taking into account the processing purposes.

To exercise the right of erasure data will be deleted when the data subjects express their refusal or opposition to the consent for their data processing and there is no legal duty that prevents it.

To exercise the right to data portability, data subjects must communicate their decisions and inform data controller about the identity of the data controller who is to be provided with his personal data, if it is the case.

The controller must inform all people with access to personal data about the terms of compliance to address the data subject's rights, the form and procedure to handle those rights.

We reserve the right to modify the present privacy policy as long as it is necessary, by requirements within the legal framework of the European Union or Spain.

If you would like to execute any of your rights, please, write to us at show@creartys.com or by post to the company address mentioned above. In either case, we will need you to send us a copy of your ID or passport so we can verify your identity and we will reply to you within a maximum period of one (1) month.

You also have the right, should you deem it appropriate, to make a claim against the Spanish Data Protection Agency, with headquarters in Madrid (28,001), C/ Jorge, núm. 6.

For more complete and detailed information on your rights we recommend that you visit the web page of the Spanish Data Protection Agency or that you contact them via their citizen advice service, by calling 901 100 099.
